

The American Journal of Physics published an article about evolution and thermodynamics that should be retracted to show the American public how irrational the scientific establishment in the U.S. is about religion. See:

I have also attached a plan for a lesson about the existence of God that I would like to give.

The following links explain why the Shroud of Turin was probably created by Gnostics in the 1st or 2nd century using methods that have been lost in history. See
