

David Roemer <david@dkroemer.com>

A Message from Congressman John Delaney

Kees Boterbloem <kleiohistorian@gmail.com>

Fri, Jan 22, 2016 at 11:19 AM

To: David Roemer <david@dkroemer.com>, Kees Boterbloem <kleiohistorian@gmail.com>

Dear Mr. Roemer:

I regret to inform you that we will not publish your submission "An Analogy Between Nazi Germany and the United States" in our pages.

We are a peer-reviewed academic journal and publish scholarly articles that take into account all the relevant historiography in an even-handed manner and engage in an exhaustive investigation of all the relevant sources.

We do not publish essays that overtly engage in political, theological or scientific polemics (scholarly we do, but then only as far as it pertains to the study of history, and we do not publish exercises in historical analogy; you may get an idea of what we tend to publish by perusing any of our issues over the last dozen or more years).

We suggest that you seek another venue (perhaps a weekly or monthly magazine dedicated to contemporary affairs or politics such as the Weekly Standard or National Review?) in your efforts to publish your viewpoints.

Respectfully yours,

Kees Boterbloem
Editor, The Historian

[Quoted text hidden]